

Supplementary Information

for

Syntheses of hyperbranched liquid crystalline biopolymers with strong adhesion from phenolic phytomonomers

Siqian Wang, Daisaku Kaneko, Kai Kan, Xin Jin, and Tatsuo Kaneko*

School of Materials Science, Japan Advanced Institute of Science and Technology, 1-1Asahidai, Nomi, Ishikawa 923-1292, Japan

Tel:+81-761-51-1633, Fax:Tel:+81-761-51-1635, E-mail:kaneko@jaist.ac.jp

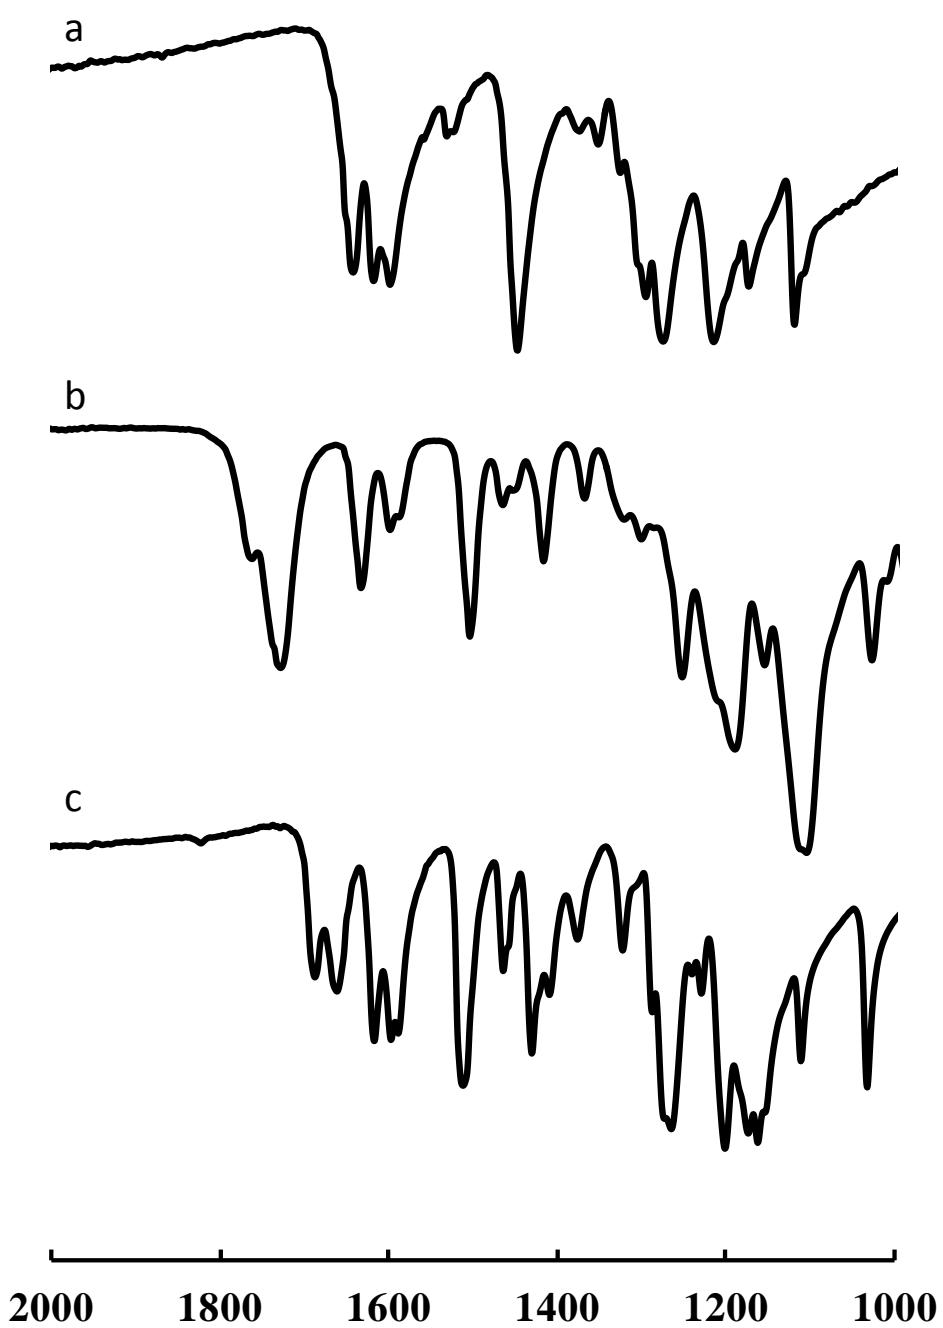

Fig. S1 Representative infrared spectra of (a) MHCA. (b) poly(DHCA-co-MHCA) with an in-feed MHCA composition of 60% . (c) DHCA

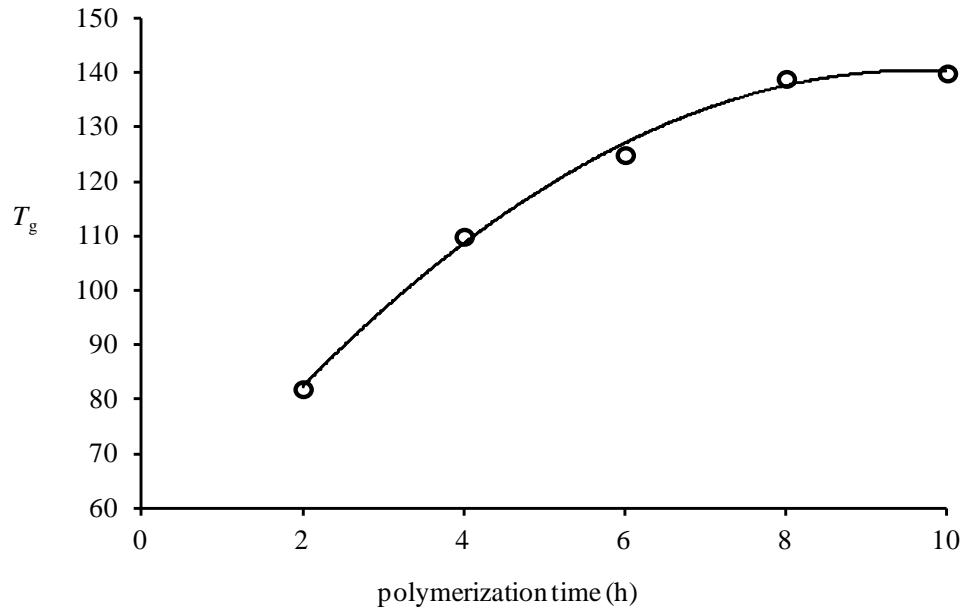

Fig. S2. T_g versus polymerization time in poly(DHCA-co-MHCA) with an in-feed MHCA composition, C_{MHCA} , of 60 mol%

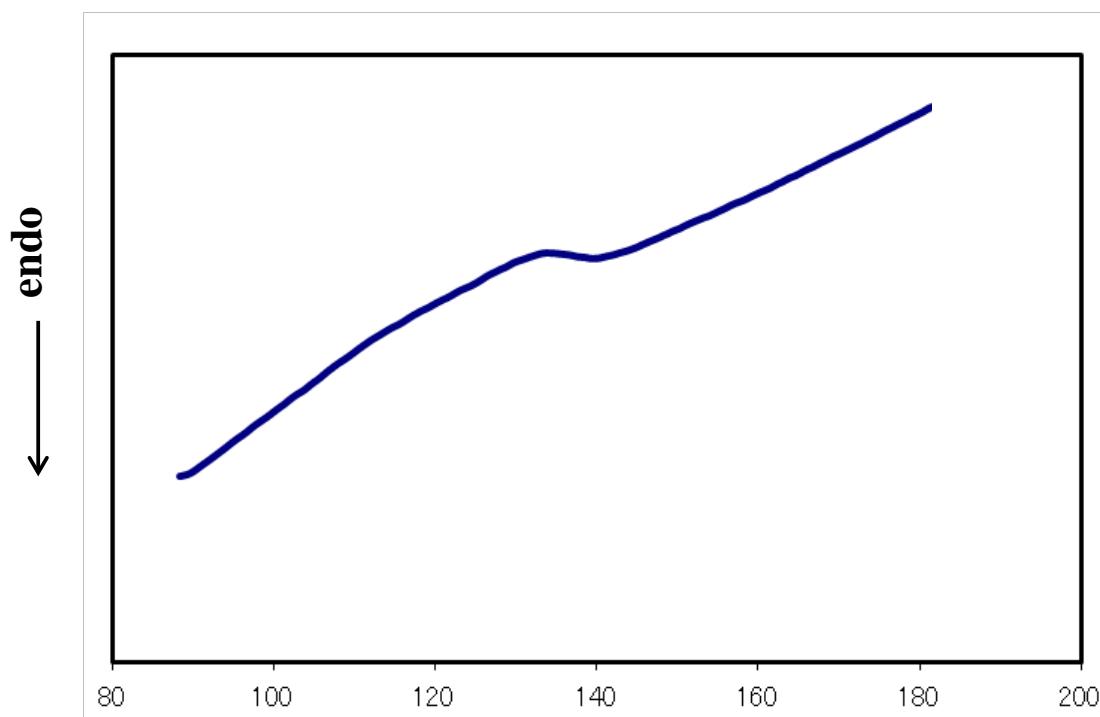

Fig. S3 Representative curve of differential scanning calorimetry (DSC) for poly(MHCA-co-DHCA) with a C_{HHCA} of 60 % prepared in the presence of Na₂HPO₄ (1 w%) at 200 °C, 8h.

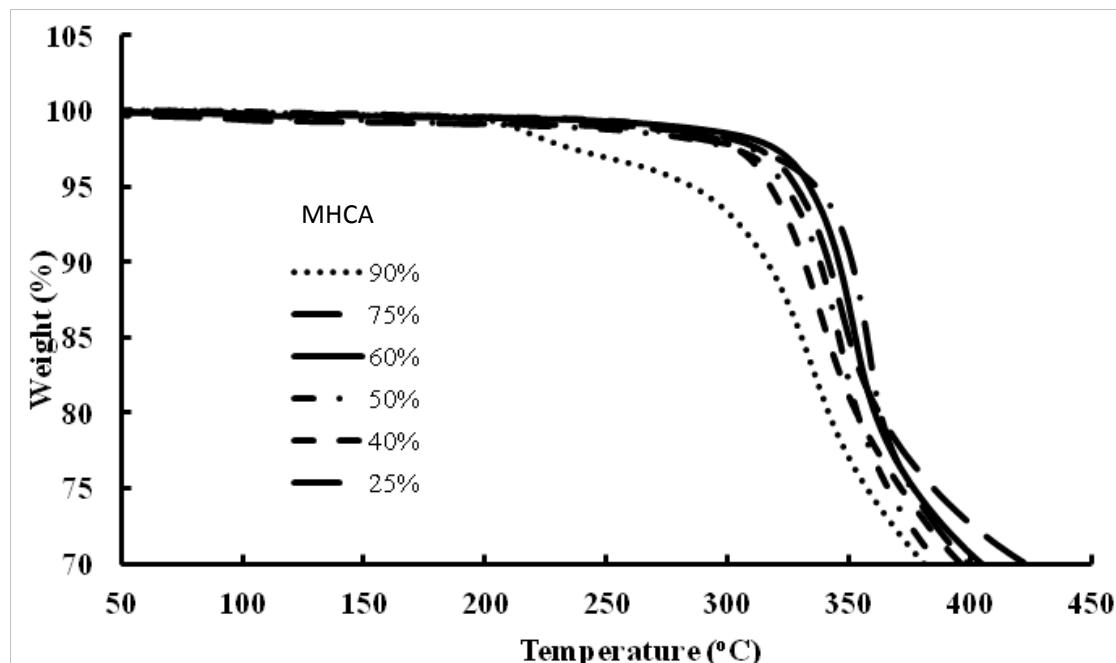

Fig. S4 Thermogravimetric curves of poly(DHCA-co-MHCA)s with various MHCA compositions.